KING DEPLORES SITUATION

Speech Dissolving Parliament Places

By United Press.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—Expel the German crown prince with or without the help of England? was the call on the French government, voiced by the press today.

Following the sharp disagreement between England and France that came to light in the Ambassadors' conference yesterday afternoon and the British prime minister's warning of a refusal to collaborate with France, Premier Poincare was urged by French newspapers to discipline Germany by himself.

LONDON, Nov. 16.—After a speech from the throne, revealing the "profound anxiety" with which Great Britain views the continental situation, King George's decree dissolving Parliament was read today. With Anglo-French friendship apparently at the breaking point again, the king, in his usual restrained language, directly placed on France responsibility for holding up a solution of the reparations problem. The speech from the throne, always a carefully weighed statement, was read by the king in the House of Commons shortly after Parliament assembled for its usual Friday session. It referred to Anglo-American efforts to start a reparations inquiry and continued:

"Unfortunately it was not possible to secure the assent of the French government to proposals which it had been hoped would lead to a solution of the reparations problem. My government regards with profound anxiety the continuance of the present economic conditions in Europe, which depend so largely on the settlement of this question. A serious situation has developed in Germany which is engaging the close and earnest attention of my government."

Prime Minister Baldwin's remarks in the House last night contained even more direct reference than the king's speech to France's action. Speaking of the high hopes he had held for a reparations conference, Baldwin said:

"We have found all our efforts brought to naught, not by our own action nor by the action of America, but by the action of two of our own allies."

This statement, referring to France and Belgium, was heartily cheered. Speaking deliberately, the minister continued:

"I want to say very little at this moment, but I should like to say just this, that I have spared no pains to let it be known to our allies that the people of this country cannot continue indefinitely to maintain the spirit that is necessary for cooperation and the Entente if the present situation is allowed to continue very much longer."

PARIS, Nov. 16.—Premier Raymond Poincare today in the Chamber of Deputies declared France was anxious to maintain the Entente. His declaration was an answer to Prime Minister Baldwin's speech in the British House of Commons yesterday saying the Entente was being endangered "by the actions of two of our allies." Poincare said, however:

"France cannot make further concessions, nor can she be blamed if the Entente is no longer maintained." He concluded by expressing the hope that it would continue but said France was determined not to sacrifice any of her rights.

Mortgaged Home

By United Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 16.—A mortgaged mother's home in Kentucky to buy a pardon for my brother," Mrs. Sophie Reid of End, Okla., sister of Jim Williams, convicted of being responsible for the death of a girl, pleaded today before the state court of impeachment trying Governor Walton.

Mrs. Reid told how a parole for Williams was withheld because she did not have the full amount of money demanded and that finally sold the home for $1,500. Murray Gibbons, speaker of the house during the last regular session of the legislature, secured the pardon. Mrs. Reid said, although it finally was brought to her by a man who represented himself as Gibbons' secretary.

NOW SEARCH FOR HIM

By United Press.

BEAUMONT, Minn., Nov. 16.—Myrtle Saunders, 15, was found by police in the depths of the north woods today after a night of terror in which she was forced to accompany Leonard Portano, slayer of four persons, including the girl's parents.

Sheriff Arthur Johnson, who reported finding the girl, said her mad lover had forced her to follow him after he killed her parents, a rival suitor and a marshal, who came to arrest him. Myrtle was found at Portano's camp. The murderer had escaped into the timber. Portano was searching every thicket for him.

"The slaying started before noon yesterday when Portano quarreled with Oscar Timmy, a farmer, over the Saunders girl. Portano drew a gun and wounded Timmy. The latter started for a nearby town to enlist the aid of the town marshal.

Meanwhile Portano went to the Saunders home and asked the girl. When he started away with her, Mrs. Saunders was shot and killed. Then Portano met the girl's father and forced him into a nearby cabin. For an hour Portano threatened and

GIRL OPERATOR SAVES TOWN WHEN

Brings Citizens to Scene By Sending in General Fire Alarm.

Special to The Courier.

HOUSTON, Ill., Nov. 16.—The heroic and presence of mind of Mrs. Adeline Farrell, night operator at the local telephone exchange, early today saved this city from an organized bandit raid.

Nine yeggs, in two automobiles, swooped down on the town shortly after midnight, cut 1,300 telephone lines and started to blow the wires in two banks and the postoffice.

When her lines were cut Mrs. Farrell realized immediately that something was wrong and she turned in a general fire alarm which brought crowds of citizens to the streets.

The telephone operator stayed at her post while a clanging fire bell brought half the town's population into the streets. Citizens clad in nightgowns, night watches and town police in a dash on the robbers.

Several men even managed to get between the yeggs and their automobiles but the bandits brandished revolvers and the citizens retreated.

The men finally escaped toward the hills. Citizens hastily changing from night shirts to corduroys, took up the chase and were searching the woods today.

Rook, director of public safety ordered the permanent closing of all unchartered or "one-man" clubs in the city, numbering about 100.

The action was said to have followed an investigation of complaints that certain clubs were violating the prohibition laws. Unable to obtain evidence against any single club, the blanket order was issued to the various police commissioners to close all of them.

Mr. Jones, who was appointed superintendent of police last June, had been active in "clean-up" campaigns conducting many moonshine and gambling raids. No reason was assigned for his resignation.

FRANCE WILL EXPEL UNEMPLOYED IN RUHR
IF PAYMENTS CEASE

By United Press.

BERLIN, Nov. 16.—France has threatened to expel all unemployed persons from the occupied districts of Germany if the Reich government discontinues its relief payments, the German committee of 15 in the occupied area notified Chancellor Stresemann today.

This indication of how France would meet Germany's attempt to hold her responsible for the welfare of the population in the occupied areas came after Germany told France she could continue payments to unemployed only a short time longer. It was learned that the German government appropriated 100,000,000 "rentenmarks," the new currency, to relieve unemployment in the Ruhr and the Rhineland. This amount, however, is thought to be sufficient for only a few days.

Some members of the German cabinet were reported today to be growing restive under the virtual dictatorship of General Von Seeckt. They complained to President Ebert it was a response to their demands for limitation of Von Seeckt's powers. Ebert held a conference with the general and reached an agreement which was believed to be satisfactory to the cabinet members.

By United Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Robbers' loot in New York during the last three days was increased to more than $100,000 today when an automobile gang smashed the window of a Fifth Avenue fur shop and escaped with fur coats and cash valued at $50,000.

First 1924 Auto License Tags Sent To Machine Owners

By United Press.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 16.—The first of the 1924 automobile license plates were mailed Thursday by the State Highway Department. A lot of 5,000 tags was sent out and these will be followed by the daily shipments. So far the automobile division has received application for 160,000 licenses, while up to the present time last year there were only 40,000 applications on file.

The new title law, which becomes operative November 25, is responsible for the early applications this year. For the title blanks contain a space for the signatures of car owners who desire registration for next year. This signature, accompanied by a check for the license, plus the $2 fee for titling the car, brings the license plates and the title registration receipt.

There will be more than 1,000,000 cars to get licenses next year. So far this year there have been 956,000 passenger automobiles licensed in Pennsylvania, as compared with 764,737 licensed during the whole of 1922.

Hi Johnson Paves
Way for Coolidge Presidential Boom

By United Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Hiram Johnson has come to the aid of President Coolidge and his political supporters by breaking the ice on the Republican presidential campaign of 1924.

By announcing himself in Chicago last night as a candidate for the Republican nomination in opposition to Mr. Coolidge, Johnson freed the Coolidge organization's hands, and it can now proceed to organize its campaign openly and above board without subjecting President Coolidge to the charge of playing politics through his high office.

There will be no delay in organizing the campaign against Senator Johnson. He has announced his intention of going into every state. He will find in most of them either a "favorite son" put forward to prevent a strong Coolidge organization, or a strong Coolidge organization, which will stand in the way of a Johnson delegation to the next Republican convention.

With Johnson and McAdoo definitely entered in the 1924 presidential campaign the door has now been opened to the dozen or more "presidential possibilities" in both parties. From this time on announcement of other aspirants to one or the other of the nominations are expected as rapidly as they can complete preliminary organization work and surveys now being conducted.

Farmers' Future Depends on "Right Arm and Keen Brain"

PITTSBURG, Nov. 16.—"We are doing everything we can to help change the heart-breaking conditions the farmers face. We are developing new ways to make the United States agricultural department more helpful in these distressing times. We are passing through. But salvation lies mostly on the farmer's own right arm and keen brain. I know that conditions generally in agriculture are improving. There is a better market for many farm products and an improvement in the buying power of the American dollar," said Henry G. Wallace, United States secretary of agriculture, who addressed 4,000 Grangers in Motor Square Garden last night.

The address preceded the historic banquet which the combined Pennsylvania and National Grangers gave on the Garden stage in celebration of the fifteenth jubilee of the State Grangers' organization. It was the high tide of the State Grange convention, which began here last Monday.

Two Hundred Enrolled
For Red Cross Roll Call
Canvass in City Sunday

Spirited Contest Seen Between Klwanis and Rotary Clubs.

MEMBERSHIP FEE DOLLAR

Nearly two hundred men and women will on Sunday afternoon make a house to house canvass in Connellsville in the interest of the annual Red Cross roll call. With greater interest than at any time since the World War it is predicted that Connellsville will make an unusually good showing. Many districts in the county are already over their quota and are still working.

Every ward in Connellsville and all of the suburbs will be canvassed. Spirited rivalry is already developing among the various teams and a new angle has been injected into the campaign this year by the formation of one team composed entirely of women. Mrs. Clyde W. Downs will head the feminine canvassers who have been assigned to the Fifth Ward.

With the women covering the Fifth Ward and the Rotary Club assigned to the First, it is predicted that some of the Klwanis Club captains have their work cut out for them. In several districts there are teams not associated with either of these civic organizations and they have announced that they expect to show something in the way of speed and snap.

At the meeting of the Rotary Club yesterday noon 25 members indicated their willingness to take part in the Sunday canvass. This is a splendid showing and proves that the Rotarians are more than mere knife and forkers.

The Red Cross expended $10,000 for the financial relief of ex-service men and civilian families in Fayette county during the year which ended October 1. Although not in any sense a charitable organization, the fact that $8,718.23 was available for the needy indicates that when the call to duty comes, the organization does not fail.

All but 50 cents of the annual, contributing, sustaining and supporting memberships remains with the local chapter for its own needs. Only the money received from life memberships, $50 each, and patron memberships, $100 each, goes entirely to the national organization.

The annual membership is one dollar, and it will be the aim this year, as well as in the past, to enroll every member of the family as an annual member. The canvassers will also solicit as many of the higher memberships as possible. These are as follows: Contributing, $5; sustaining, $10, and supporting, $25.

It is estimated that $26,000 will be required to enable the Red Cross to function efficiently in Fayette county during the coming year.

WALTON CHARGES CONSPIRACY TO OVERTHROW HIM

By United Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 16.—A concerted conspiracy by Oklahoma house and senate members to drive from office Governor J. C. Walton because of his opposition to the Ku Klux Klan was charged today by the suspended executive.

"This entire impeachment business was started when I suspended the right of habeas corpus and summoned troops to protect citizens against the Klan," was the governor's version, coincident with the summons served on commercial telegraph companies to produce as evidence telegrams exchanged between legislators since September 1.

Meanwhile the senate court resumed its exhaustive inquiry into the pardons and paroles granted during Walton's regime, it was having its difficulties, however, in expediting matters.

SOFT COAL MINERS
PLANNING STRIKE FOR NEXT SPRING

Believing Their Demand for a Wage Increase Will Be Refused.

CONFLICT WILL RESULT

Operators Feeling Further Increase in Cost of Production Will Be Hard Blow at the Industry Congress May Held to Tackle the Question.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Writing his paper the local correspondent of the American Metal Market declares, upon what he alleges is dependable authority, that both bituminous miners and operators foresee another shutdown in the unheated bituminous coal fields next spring, and are preparing for it. Also, big coal consumers who can do so are quietly laying in a surplus. Miners are preparing to ask another wage increase, knowing very well that it will be refused.

Operators who feel that further increases in the price of coal resulting from higher wages will be a body blow at their business are in a mood for a finish fight.

When the anthracite trouble was at its height during the late summer, the settlement which took place was predicted by persons thoroughly familiar with what the miners are doing and thinking. At the same time, trouble in the bituminous fields was forecast. Since then the situation has drifted along to where the miners must soon show their hands and they are jockeying for a position from which they can claim that a strike has been forced upon them.

Federal officials are well aware of the situation but have taken no steps to bring about an adjustment. Congress, when it meets, will have many volumes of information on coal which the coal commission has prepared. However, the question is so full of dynamite politically that Congress may hesitate to touch it.

The present agreement between the bituminous operators and miners expires March 31 next, but the negotiations which will show whether there is to be continued peace or a split in the industry will get under way early in January when miners are to give notice whether they will confer for a continuation of the agreement and on what basis. Operators expect and miners do not deny that they will ask substantial wage increases, knowing it cannot be granted.

The negotiations may get no further than this.

MOUNT PLEASANT MAN KILLS SELF IN SLAUGHTER HOUSE

Joseph Hostoffer, Employee at Place, Despondent Over Wife's Death.

Special to The Courier.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Nov. 16.—After making the remark this morning, "I believe I'll shoot myself," to a man and a boy who are employed at Hostoffer's slaughter house, near Mount Pleasant, Frank Joseph Hostoffer, 30 years old, picked up a shotgun and pulled the trigger, the charge exploding just above the heart.

The act was committed at the slaughter house.

Hostoffer died as he was being taken into the Memorial Hospital.

Dependancy, following the death of his wife, who before her marriage was a Miss Schrammer, about a year ago, is thought to have caused the man to take his life.

Mr. Hostoffer had spent all his life at Mount Pleasant and was very well known in that community. He lived in Morrow street. He was employed by his brother, Edward, who owns the slaughter house. He is survived by three small children.

The body was removed to the funeral parlors of Mr. A. King.

B. R. & P. AND COAL COMPANY ARE INDICTED

RUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 16.—Two secret indictments, one against the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh Railway Company and the other against the Rochester and Pittsburgh Coal & Iron Company, alleging violations of Elkins act, were made public Thursday by United States Attorney William J. Donovan. The indictments were returned by a Federal grand jury last Monday.

The main office of the railway company is in Rochester and headquarters of the coal company are in Indiana, Pa. The latter formerly was a subsidiary of the railway company. The indictments charge that the two companies entered into an agreement when the coal mining suspension of last year was impending, whereby coal was to be held in care of the railway company for its own use and for the coal company's customers. The indictment also alleges that the railway agreed not to collect demurrage charges, that discrimination was shown against other coal shippers and that concessions were granted in freight rates previous to the actual mining suspension. The last charge is that the railway failed to collect, refund or charge on shipments made after the period of the emergency was ended.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

Some Old Sandwiches. One Mother Says: When children carry their lunch to school every day they grow tired of sandwiches which always look the same. I therefore bought a set of cookie cutters, and some days I give the youngsters heart-shaped sandwiches, some days diamond-shaped ones, or star ones. Their little friends are always waiting to "taste" at noon, though their own "ordinary" sandwiches may be made of the very same ingredients.

GEORGE'S INCOME IS GROWING

King of England Said to Be Making Money Through His Realty Investments.

From England comes a report that King George V has increased his income this year by several million dollars through his realty investments. It is said the greater part of that increase comes from the king's Regent street holdings—and thereby hangs a tale.

Many years ago, as the New York Herald reports the circumstances, Regent street was developed with a row of stucco houses which became the laugh of London because of their odd appearance. The wits of the town poked so much fun at the houses that no one would occupy them.

Finally the rents were lowered to such a point that people decided to pocket their pride along with the saving in rent and the buildings were tenanted soon for an average rental of about $100 a year.

Those who accepted the king's offer had to sign ninety-nine-year leases. The inequality of the contract became obvious as Regent street grew in importance as a business thoroughfare, but none of the successive rulers of England ever tried to force their tenants to pay higher rents. Bad business though it was undoubtedly, the rulers realized that law was paramount and neither sovereign nor subject could circumvent its provisions.

Now the leases are expiring and King George is reaping the benefit of renewals at current market values. Under the new leases tenants will pay as much as a week as they did a year.

TAKES FIRST HORSE RIDE

School Teacher in Oregon Never Rode in Buggy.

It was not uncommon some years ago to hear of a man or woman who had never seen a steam locomotive, a motor car, but the present days it appears that an antithesis to the rule appears occasionally.

At a school district in Catherine Creek district east of Union, Ore., Miss Helen Cantline, twenty years old, a school teacher, never rode in a vehicle drawn by horses until recently, when she made a five-mile trip to attend a church, being conveyed the entire distance in a buggy. Miss Cantline, who formerly made her home in Portland, enjoyed the ride immensely. Miss Cantline is now taking horsemanship lessons and expects to be proficient in handling the reins within a short time.

BAN ON RABBIT IN GERMANY

Hungry Thieves Take Bunnies Incited With Bait.

Heidelberg, Germany, is passing through a "poisoned rabbit" scare. Stewed rabbit, formerly a popular dish at the students' boarding houses, and also among the professors of Heidelberg university, for the time is banned everywhere.

All the remarks from the act of hungry thieves who broke into the medical laboratories of the university recently and made away with two cages of rabbits which had been incited with typhoid and other germs.

Police have been instructed to shoot at sight any rabbit seen at large.

Rearing Wild Furbeaters. Important progress has been made in investigations pertaining to the raising of wild fur-bearing animals in captivity, says the Scientific American.

Fur farms are reported from 25 states where foxes, skunks, minks, opossums, muskrats, marten, squirrels and beavers are raised.

It is estimated that 500 ranchers are raising silver foxes in the United States, that they have between 12,000 and 15,000 foxes in captivity, and that the value of the investment is about $2,000,000.

The discovery of the fact that martens breed the last of July and in August has solved the problem which has heretofore prevented the successful rearing of these animals in captivity and has opened up an important field to the fur farmer.

Canada Bans Potatoes. The new destructive insect and pest act recently passed by the Canadian parliament prohibits shipments of potatoes into Canada from California, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Maryland.

INTERSCHOLASTIC BASKETBALL SEASON OPENS JANUARY 4

At a meeting of the Fayette County Interscholastic Association, held Thursday night in Uniontown, a schedule for Group 2 basketball season was adopted but the Group 3 arrangements was turned down. It will be re-called.

The schedule for Group 2 opens the season on January 4 and continues until March 7. In that team each season will meet the other twice. This season, instead of each school arranging for its own referees, one will be appointed by the basketball committee from a list of men submitted at last night's meeting. Among these are William Lewis and J. H. Henderson of this city and Edward Wall of Scottdale.

M. M. Black, principal of the Uniontown High School and B. B. Smith, superintendent of the Connellsville schools, were retained as official scorers.

The track committee, to handle the next spring, includes B. B. Smith of Connellsville, and W. E. Fletcher, principal of Dunbar Township High School. The committee will name the time and place of the meet. The tennis committee was instructed to arrange for tournaments to be played during May. The preliminary meet will be run off at schools involved and the finals will be held in Uniontown.

The basketball schedule approved includes the following schools: Redwood Township, South Brownsville, Uniontown, German Township, North Union and Dunbar Township High Schools.

American Indian Staging "Come-Back"

Like his old friend, the buffalo, the American Indian is making a comeback. Figures recently announced by the Bureau of Indian Affairs show that the American Indian population is now 244,307, a gain of 1,114 over last year.

"Not only last year, but for thirty years, the red men have steadily been gaining on their death rate," says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society.

"Today there are six Indians per square mile on reservations which comprise less than one percent of the land of the United States. According to the best estimates available there was an average of only one Indian for every three square miles when white people first came to American shores. If only two-thirds of the United States were occupied by red skins at the present reservation population rate, there would be 13,000,000 Indians in the United States today.

Aboriginal Population Small.—Mason says the Pilgrim fathers came, but the fact is that Massachusetts and his kind lived for the most part by product of the chase. Deer, buffalo, bear and rabbit were their pork and beef, and berries and nuts their potatoes. Even vermin America could support an intense population living in this fashion. The total Indian population at the time Columbus landed at San Salvador is set at about 246,000. If all the tribes, from the Pacific to the Atlantic, and from the Gulf to the Great Lakes, had assembled at one great meeting, they would have made up a community not so large as Detroit and only a few thousand greater than Cleveland of Boston.

While men's guns decimated some tribes, disease and epidemics, and epidemics which came with the white men spread death more surely. Smallpox epidemics swept through the western tribes three times between 1781 and 1837 with more fatal results than the influenza plague of 1918. A peculiar fever killed 70,000 Indians in California and Oregon in one year. By 1890 the Indian population had been reduced to 250,127, therefore the present population represents an increase of nearly 190,000 in 30 years.

Biggest Gain on Land.—Robert Green says that the "One American Indian tribe today is the richest people on the face of the earth. Beneath the lands of the Omaha Indian tribe in Oklahoma, oil was discovered. Their wells produce $50,000,000 worth of oil annually, and Uncle Sam, who handles the business for his red brother, distributes to each member of the tribe from $10,000 to $12,000 each year. In 1922 more than 29,000,000 barrels of oil were produced on Omaha lands.

Partial Adoption to the White Man's Way.—Uncle Sam is responsible for the increase in Indian population. The red man may still be a hunter, but a visitor to a reservation will find the red skin useful as well as noble. He is often a rancher, dairy farmer, gardener, weaver, pottery maker, rugmaker, potter, raiser, typist, bookkeeper, miner, lumberer, guide, and he even uses coupons.

Two Hundred Tribes Salvaged.—"Out of the ruins of Indian civilization more than 100 tribes have been salvaged. These tribes are lodged on nearly 200 reservations varying from tiny rancheries in California to the great Navajo reservation in Arizona and New Mexico larger than the state of Maryland. The Bureau of Indian Affairs is their guardian. It is a government by itself, having a cabinet of six commissioners, and undertaking all-encompassing activities typical of which are a probate court, trust company, public roads commission, orphan asylum, town building, and operation of a philanthropic association, bank, and employment agency.

Basically the red man once more dumped himself with garish war paint, dressed himself in all his feathers, and hit the war path. The path led to Hollywood and the Indians broke into the movies. Uncle Sam gave permission for the Shoshoni and Arapaho tribes of the Wind River reservation in Wyoming to go to the movie city to be used in the making of pictures.

The Pilgrimage.—When the faithful followers of the pilgrim reach the Holy City on a pilgrimage they must be garbed in seasonable dress, must have four baths before they go to kiss the black stone then must travel seven times about the city three times running and four times walking then must run up and down some of the sacred hills then must go to Mt. Ararat stand on the summit all afternoon and repeat their prayers then return to the sacred city and stop at a village to sacrifice a goat, a sheep or a camel, then cast their stones at each of several calves. Then they may shave and cut their nails the pilgrimage having been concluded.—Ohio State Journal

Dodging a Libel Suit.—"My Strong has been in today and he had murder in his eye, said the city editor. "How in time did you come to speak of Mrs. Strong's alleged husband in that paragraph about her accident?"

"I did it to clear clear of a libel suit," replied Freese. "You know, you told me always to say 'alleged thief,' 'alleged murderer,' and that sort of thing."

MODIFICATION OF L. C. C'S CAR ORDER SEEMS TO BE LIKELY

To the Extent of Granting Concessions to Owners of Private Cars.

ROADS MAKE POOR CASE

Judging from questions asked and from the attitude of the members during the rehearing of the assigned car case, there is some likelihood that the Commission will modify its recent opinion so as to grant a concession to the owners of private cars. It also is regarded as probable that the commission will defer the effective date of its order from December 1 to January 1. It is the consensus of opinion that no change will be made in that portion of the opinion affecting the preferential use of cars for the transportation of railroad fuel, says the Washington correspondent of Coal Age.

The railroads have made a particularly poor case. Even the Chesapeake & Ohio, which clamored loudest for a rehearing of the case, failed to bring in a scintilla of new matter. Railroad witnesses generally simply repeated arguments which had been presented at the former hearing. Boiled down, the substance of their arguments is that assigned cars are necessary to insure the railroads with a continuous supply, of the type of coal best adapted for locomotive purposes. Their statements were presented as personal opinions, and no convincing facts and few figures were presented in the effort to substantiate the statements. Many of the railroad witnesses were purchasing agents or those connected with the use of fuel. Members of the commission pointed out repeatedly that the case presents transportation and not merchandising problems.

When the railroads announced after having presented only perfunctory testimony, that they had completed their case, those in attendance were astounded. No explanation is forthcoming as to why they asked that the case be reopened when they had no new evidence to present. Even Commissioner Atchison admitted the railroads that a new opportunity had been accorded them to present evidence and urged them to present it if they had it.

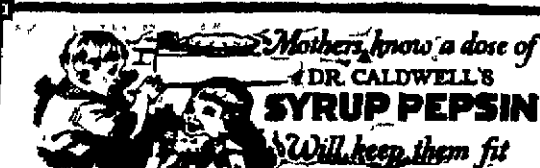

It is believed the granting of the rehearing was influenced in no small degree by a feeling on the part of members of the commission that the railroads had been overconfident during the first hearing. It was assumed that the railroads took it for granted that the commission would not abolish assigned cars as a concession did not make a determined effort to present arguments in favor of the continuance of their use. The showing during the rehearing, however, indicated that the railroads are not in a position to substantiate the claims they have been making in this particular.

That the desire on the part of the railroads to continue assigned cars was "adjusted" more by the better prices they could obtain by furnishing fuel to the mines with which they had contracts, was emphasized in an amusing way during the hearing. One of the witnesses was making certain points contained in a letter written by an official of the Prince Lines. Opposing counsel happened to ask to see the letter. The witness showed disinclination to comply with the request. Finally he handed the first page of it. He was asked for the remainder of the letter, which he declined to hand over. Commissioner Atchison was called upon to rule on the matter. He held that it had been the practice of the commission to allow opposing counsel to consult a full document when extracts only were being presented. When, upon that ruling, the whole letter was passed over, it was found that the railroad official had emphasized the need for assigned cars because of the effective way in which they could be used to obtain lower prices for coal.

The arguments made by the railroads as to the strides they are making in operating efficiency failed to square with those which were presented at this hearing to indicate the inability of the roads to obtain ample fuel without a preferential car supply. Another interesting point brought out was the large storage of undeveloped coal mines owned by railroads. The New York Central alone, it was testified, owns 100,000 acres of potential coal lands.

Another point which can be deduced from the testimony is the comparatively small amount of coal which moves in private cars during the period when there is any stringency in car supply. The total for 1923, it was not reached 10,000,000 tons, on an annual basis an insignificant amount when compared with the total yearly movement.

Those arguing for private cars dis-

'First Aid' For Sick Children

THE experienced mother is not alarmed when a child becomes sick. She knows that most of the ailments of childhood are trifling. If it seems serious she calls a doctor, but whether or not she calls him she gives, first of all, a good laxative medicine. The doctor would advise that anyway. It is his "first aid." Such experienced mothers as Mrs. Everett E. Hunt of Belmont, Okla., who has three children and never any sickness, and Mrs. F. B. Kinkadee of Prosser, Wash., always give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at the first indication of sickness. Such timely doses have saved them much worry.

The Meaning of "Good"

All doctors agree that a thorough cleaning out of the bowels is of first importance for it removes dangerous intestinal poisons. They will also advise a "good laxative," and "good" they mean one that is effective and yet harmless. They know that there are poisons that never should be given to children—calomel, which is mercury and loosens the teeth; phosphorus, a corrosive drug that causes skin trouble, salts, which concentrate the blood and dry up the saliva. They consider Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin safe for all ages as they know it is a simple vegetable compound of Epsom salts with pepsin and agreeable aromatics. The formula is on the package.

Give Laxative for Colds

Adults should have at least one movement of the bowels every 24 hours, and children two or three. Failure to have it means constipation, then headache, drowsiness, drowsiness lack of appetite. Give a dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at bedtime, and there will be health and good feeling by morning. A dose costs less than a cent, and a bottle can be had at any drug store. Colds and constipation come together so if you notice coughing or sneezing stop it at once with Syrup Pepsin.

Armless Woman Artist Is Earning Fame By Painting With Brush Held In Teeth

MISS GEORGIA WILKINSON AT WORK IN HER HOME.

NEW YORK CITY—Struggling to paint a picture of a woman who had lost her arms to a disease, Miss Georgia Wilkinson, an armless woman, has become a successful painter by painting with a brush held in her teeth.

Miss Wilkinson was working upon a portrait of a woman when the model died. She had been painting the portrait for some time, and it was a very good one.

THE CITY OF IT

The tragedian came bursting into the smoking room of the theatrical club.

"Hurrah, hurrah!" he shouted loudly. "I've just signed a three-year contract! Ten pounds a week and all expenses paid by the manager!"

"I'm jolly glad to hear that, old man," said one of the members, jumping to his feet. "When do you open?"

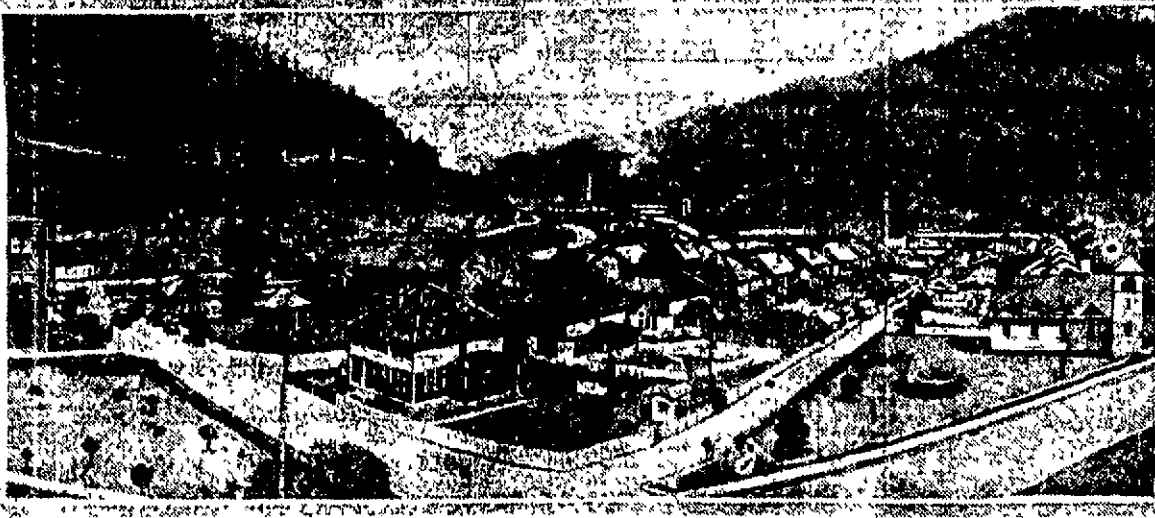

"September 1, in Old Town," was the answer.

The friend shook his head gravely.

"The catch," he said, in piping tones, "lays an egg weighing from two to four pounds."—London Answer

Old Time Mining Camps Are Gone; Attractive Communities in Their Stead in Soft Coal Fields

The old terms always stick, no matter how outworn and even false they may become in time. Every mining community probably always will be known as a "mining camp," calling up visions of the tents and rude shacks of the days when the pioneers rushed to California and Alaska seeking gold.

Everybody connected with mining coal—the operators as well as the miners—speaks of the communities which have grown up around coal mines as "camps." The familiar picture is conjured up in the minds of those who have never seen these "camps" as they exist today.

The truth is that coal mining communities are model towns which compare favorably with towns of the same size, anywhere. The picture above, taken at Island Creek, in Logan County, West Virginia, gives an excellent idea of how the soft coal miner lives to-day. Well built, modern, neat houses, with modern improvements, lawns, wide, well laid out, graded streets, nestling in the valley close by the creek with mountains rising on either side, except for the presence of the mine company's office building, the front of which just shows at the left of the picture, gives the town more the appearance of a suburban community or a resort than a "mining camp" in its old sense.

The miners' houses stretch on beyond the church seen at the right of the picture, and on down the valley out of sight around the bend in the creek. These houses, in nearly all coal mining communities, are built and owned by the companies, and rented to the miners at rates which must make the average city renter sick with envy. The usual basis of rental charge is by the room, the rate varying from $1 to $2 per room each month. Imagine renting a six-room house, with a garden and yard, often a garage, well kept up and with modern improvements, for from $6 to $12 a month. These days are gone forever in the cities, but they will exist for a long time to come for the coal miner.

These model homes are electrically lighted, and the miner pays a ridiculously low rate for this service, as he does for all the coal he burns for heating his house and other domestic fuel purposes.

The soft coal miner, with the help of the operators, seems to have found an attractive and certain way of beating the high cost of living barely completely.

SEATTLE HEALTHY CITY FOR BABES

Has Lowest Mortality in the United States.

RATE FOR THE YEAR IS 49

Of the twenty-five largest cities in the United States, not more than 27,000 population, Seattle, Wash., was the healthiest for infants in 1922, according to infant mortality statistics, just published by the American Child Health Association, of which Herbert Hoover is president.

Seattle's infant mortality rate for the year was 49, which means that that number of infants under one year of age died out of every thousand born. The next four cities in order were Minneapolis, 52; Portland, Ore., 56; San Francisco, 57; and St. Louis, 60.

The rate for New York city, including all five boroughs, was 75, and for Chicago, second largest city, 85. As well as having lowest rates, where the large cities were concerned, Western states also made the best average rates, when taking into consideration all cities of more than 10,000 population of which there are 625 included in the report.

Oregon with four cities within this classification, had the best average rate, 48.6. Nine cities in the state of Washington were second with 58.9; eleven cities in Minnesota, third, with 60.3; twenty-five cities in California, fourth, with 61.6; and five cities in Nebraska, fifth, with 65.8.

The American Child Health Association's report has become an annual compilation published to stimulate interest in measures to aid in the reduction of infant mortality the country over. The association is waging a vigorous campaign to arouse parents and teachers to a child health consciousness and for a nation of healthier babies. Among its efforts are the distribution of booklets for doctors, teachers and nurses in health work and literature, for the mother, and for the safe care of children from birth through the school age.

The twenty-five cities of more than 250,000 population ranked by infant mortality rate, 1 to 25, were as follows:

Rank by Population	City	Infant Mortality Rate
1	Seattle, Wash.	49
2	Minneapolis, Minn.	52
3	Portland, Ore.	56
4	San Francisco, Calif.	57
5	St. Louis, Mo.	60
6	New York City, N. Y.	75
7	Chicago, Ill.	85
8	Philadelphia, Pa.	87
9	Baltimore, Md.	88
10	San Antonio, Tex.	89
11	Indianapolis, Ind.	90
12	Cleveland, Ohio	91

In addition to the rate for New York City, including all its boroughs, save Richmond, which is below 250,000 in population, the rate for the individual boroughs are also given.

DON'T "IMPROVE" ON NATURE

Introduction of English Sparrow in United States an Example of Its Unwisdom.

There have been some disastrous experiments in the direction of "improving" on nature. For instance, when rats became such a nuisance in Jamaica the East Indian mongoose was introduced to rid the island of the pest. But today the mongoose is a greater nuisance than the rat, and being bigger and hungrier and quicker on its feet it is worse than the thing it was introduced to destroy.

A settler thought he would make home in a strange land more homelike by introducing the British sparrow, which hitherto had been unknown on the other side of the Atlantic, says London Tit-Bits. Mr. Sparrow liked his new quarters and quickly made himself at home, with disastrous results to crops and native birds.

And what shall be said of the colonists who brought a pair of rabbits from England to Australia so that they might breed and supply him with his favorite rabbit pie? There are enough rabbits in Australia today to make rabbit pie for the entire population of the earth. The authorities have spent millions of pounds in efforts to exterminate them, but they still go on breeding, and eating the grass the sheep should have.

MUST CHANGE MAP OF ETNA

Recent Eruption of the Sicilian Volcano Probably Has Made Great Alterations.

Seventeen years ago when Vesuvius was angry all maps had to be rectified after the eruption. The extreme summit of the mountain had become considerably lower and the crater was much deeper. Now the Etna eruption was much more violent than that of Vesuvius, which means probably the sides of the Sicilian volcano will also have to be changed on the map.

In spite of its great activity the eruption of Vesuvius can be observed from one end to the other by an expert. Doctor Matteucci spent three days and three nights in a recess of the smoking crater. He was thought to be dead. When he returned he could not hide his joy, not at having escaped death by a miracle, but at being able to make observations on the spot of this tremendous phenomenon, of which he had been certainly a most indiscreet witness.

His successor, Professor Malladra, has been observing the different phases of the recent Etna convulsions. But he was not able to approach as near as Doctor Matteucci on Vesuvius. L'Opinion.

Nudity in Era. Women's ears will soon be visible—prophesy American hindrances. Can it be? Are years of invisibility to go for naught and, as modesty shrieking flew in another, and the last, limb to be uncovered in surrender to fashion?

So long has the world gone without a glimpse of woman's ears that it will wait with skepticism the emergencies of the mythic-tinted shawl. While all along it has been suspected that girls were equipped with auditory apparatus because of the quickness with which they could hear an invitation to the movies, it will require the actual appearance of feminine ears to reassure man as to their existence. Then the shocking nudity of ears will call for the creation of a League of Nations branch to deal with the problem. Washington Post.

WILL you become a stockholder in the American Red Cross? Will you share in this great work of Disaster Relief, Helping Disabled Veterans, advancing Public Health Nursing, Home Care of the Sick, Nutrition Service, First Aid for the Injured, Life Saving Service and preparing the coming generation for a better citizenship through the Junior Red Cross?

Since 1881 the American Red Cross has administered more than $20,000,000 in disasters; after the Japanese earthquake, $10,000,000 was contributed for relief through the Red Cross. From July 1, 1917 to January 30, 1923, the American Red Cross spent nationally and through its chapters more than $163,000,000 in service to the men who wore the American Uniform in the World War. The Red Cross provides a reserve nursing corps of 40,000 trained nurses, ready for any emergency.

Halt in Reduction Program At Furnace Oven Plants May Be No More Than Temporary

Merchants Curtail Still Further
But Considerably Less Severely.

WEEK'S GAIN BUT 80 TONS

Made up of Difference Between Merchant Decrease of 1,320 and Furnace Increase of 1,240 Tons; Operators
Still Disposed to Move Cautiously.

Although there was a halt in the coke production reduction program last week, it is perhaps too early to declare with positiveness that the change in the trend is permanent. The reason for doubt or hesitancy on this score arises from the fact that only one of the two groups of producers made an about face and scored a gain instead of a loss in weekly output. The other group very materially reduced the amount of its decrease but not to the extent necessary to indicate that the reduction policy is to be completely discontinued. That the increase in production was insignificant in amount, and barely enough to cause a very slight variation in the course of the curve, shows further that there is not yet very substantial ground upon which to base a prediction as to the permanency of the change.

The regional production for the week was 181,920 tons, or but 80 tons larger than that of the preceding week. The gain of 1,800 tons at furnace ovens was almost entirely offset by the loss of 1,720 tons at the merchant ovens. The decrease by the latter was the smallest during a single week since that ended September 15 when merchant production fell off 1,800 tons. In the subsequent weeks the decline ranged from 3,010 to 11,580 tons, the latter occurring during the week of November 3. The severity of the cut in the first week of the present month is largely responsible for last week's paring having been so slight.

The unconsigned coke which had been accumulating for several weeks was fairly well cleared and there was a feeling that the curtailment process had proceeded so far that there was less necessity than earlier to continue its application with vigor. Just how nearly correct this has been has not yet been definitely established. There is no visible quickening in demand for coke and some additions have been made to the so-called "distress coke," which comprises loads for which no shipping orders have been received—a condition calling for the exercise of caution.

Having kept close watch upon the situation in all its phases and developments there will doubtless be the disposition of merchant producers to continue to guard against any enlargement of production beyond the total of last week. This is evidently in closer agreement with consuming requirements than at any time during which there has been effort to preserve a proper balance. It is possible, however, that the extreme low level has not yet been reached, but the producers are taking the precautions necessary to make any further descent with ease and safety should the occasion demand it.

The estimated production of coke during the week ended Saturday, November 10, was 181,920 tons, divided between the two districts as follows: Connellville, 109,180, an increase of 1,760 tons; Lower Connellville, 72,740, a decrease of 2,680 tons or a net increase of 80 tons, as compared with total decrease of 12,320 tons during the preceding week.

By interests the production was: furnace, 110,000, a gain of 1,800 tons; merchant, 71,920, a loss of 1,720 tons, a contrast with losses of 1,000 and 1,880 tons respectively during the week ended November 3.

The further decrease of 204 ovens in the active list was at merchant plants, the furnace ovens being without change. The merchant changes were as follows:

1a, Oliver No. 1, 10; Oliver No. 3, 17; Lincoln, 20; Washington No. 1, 30; Washington No. 2, 35; total, 107. Out-

Herbert, 210; Poland, 101; total, 311, making not decrease 204. Herbert and Poland suspended operations completely.

Production by the two interests and the total compared with the corresponding week in 1922 is shown here-with:

Feels Like New Man

Glad Friend Suggested That He Take Dreo

Friendly suggestions sometimes cause a great deal of trouble. But in the case of Mr. Jacob Leichter of Connellville it caused a great deal of good.

"For years I suffered from rheumatism," says Mr. Leichter. "Pains in my back and limbs made it impossible for me to work. The suffering was so intense that I could not sleep at night."

"A friend of mine who had suffered from rheumatism told me what Dreo had done for him and suggested I try it. 'It only took one bottle of this wonderful medicine to prove its worth. The pains in my back and limbs left me and I now feel better than I have in years.'"

Dreo is the pure liquid extract of many roots, herbs, barks and leaves which act on the vital organs of the human body. After taking Dreo it is noticed that the stomach is soothed and the gassy condition eliminated. The liver becomes active, relieving headaches and that dull, tired out feeling; nerves are quieted which induces sound sleep. The kidneys are strengthened, appetite increased, bowels act with ease and regularly and the whole system takes on renewed energy, vigor and vitality. Dreo is harmless, pleasant to take and the effects are quickly felt.

Dreo is being speedily introduced by Connellville Drug Company and sold by druggists everywhere. Also for sale by Hoffman's Drug Store in Scotland. —Advertisement.

FISH ANSWERS DINNER CALL

Arkansas Has Perch That Turns Double Flip When Fed Worms.

Wyatt Wolf of Mountain Home, Ark., has started a fish hatchery in the big tank which supplies water to the light plant here. At present he has one perch, which is leading a lonely yet lively life.

The one he has in the tank, according to Wolf, is some fish. He calls it Speck and has it trained. He can rap on the tank and it will come like a hog when it is called for feed. He feeds Speck sardines and when the fish is hungry Wolf can hold a worm so inches from the surface of the water, and Speck will leap out and grab it. To express its gratification, as it returns to the water, the fish turns a double flip.

The tank is about twelve feet square, and Wolf has a sign tacked on it: "No Fishing Allowed."

New and Unusual.
A coat which is a striking exponent of the new mode is in color a marvelous tone called Egyptian granite, somewhat like rosewood. It is trimmed with bands of heavier slightly separated so that one glimpses the color of the fabric. These bands are arranged to extend only across one side, leaving the other plain. The effect is new and unusual.

COAL MINING IN EUROPE MAKING GREAT PROGRESS

Splendid Engineering Skill Displayed in Restoring French Plants.

MANY ADVANCED IDEAS

Remarkable progress has been achieved in the reconstruction of the French mining industry, systematically destroyed in war-time by the invading Germans, according to George S. Rice, chief mining engineer of the Bureau of Mines, Department of the Interior, who has just returned to this country, after completing a study, occupying several months, of conditions in the mining industry of France, Great Britain, Belgium, Germany, Poland, and Czechoslovakia, made at the direction of Hubert Work, Secretary of the Interior.

As a result of the splendid engineering skill employed in the restoration work, some of the finest coal-mining plants in the world have been constructed in the north of France, states Mr. Rice in a report made to Director H. Porter Bain of the Bureau of Mines. Thousands of miners' houses have been built, replacing those destroyed. These houses are quite attractive and most of them have gardens, which have been redeemed from trench and blasted ground. Much attention has been paid to welfare projects, with the result that the miners of northern France are undoubtedly better housed than miners in any other part of the world. Underground, the mines have been recovered to such an extent that they are producing about 70 per cent of the normal coal output. When all of the water has been pumped out of the mines, the coal production of northern France will be greatly increased over that of the pre-war period. Ingenious communication methods have been employed in the restoration of mine shafts in which the iron linings had been blasted, admitting water, which flooded the mines.

An interesting sociological development in the coal-mining industry of Great Britain, whereby the mine owners and the miners share in the distribution of profits, was studied by Mr. Rice. Under this plan, the mines are grouped in certain districts and monthly, in each designated district, the gross total expenses of production of the coal are deducted from the gross profits of the mines of that district and from this gross net profit there is deducted six per cent of the invested capital; the remainder, if any, is divided between the owners and miners, the owners receiving 17 1/2 per cent. The miners' share, if any, is prorated among the miners of the district and the amount thus determined by certified accountants is paid to the miners two months later in the form of an increase in wages.

Interesting developments in the problem of surface subsidence resulting from mining operations were observed in Great Britain and France. At St. Etienne, France, mines have passed under important buildings which have been sunk as much as 20 feet without material damage, because of the careful packing methods employed. The mine subsidence problem is one of growing seriousness in various European countries. The English Parliament has recently established a commission to study the situation, with a view to recommending special remedial legislation.

In Great Britain and France, the employment of rock dust as screen or barrier for the limitation of coal dust explosions to its immediate area of origin and prevented the great loss of life that must have occurred had the explosion spread through the mines. Much experimental work along this line has been performed in the United States by the Bureau of Mines. Mr. Rice points out, but the states have as yet enacted no legislation to compel the adoption of this system in the mines of the country.

Liquid oxygen explosives are being extensively used in France and Germany in metal mining and quarrying operations. This type of explosive is not, however, being employed in coal mines because of the assumed danger of causing coal dust explosions. Tests employing liquid oxygen explosives in quarries and metal mines in the United States are now being made by the Bureau of Mines at Pittsburgh, and at other field stations.

Mr. Rice found that research into the causes and prevention of mine explosions had been virtually stopped in Europe during the war-time period and had not been fully resumed in continental countries except that in France the fundamentals of safety explosives are being studied. In Great Britain, research along this line has been resumed. In the study of the use of stone dust in the limitation of mine explosions, the English investigators have attained greater progress than has been achieved in the United States.

In France, it was observed that powdered coal has been widely adopted as a fuel. In Germany, near Hanover, novel methods are being employed in the distillation of brown coal, a lignite quite different from American lignites, from which vast ous valuable oils, paraffin and gas are being obtained. At Wiltshaven, England, coal is being mined under the sea, at a point 4 1/2 miles from the shore line.

Owing to the scarcity of timber, various substitutes are being employed in the different countries for mine props. Steel props and steel arches are being extensively used to uphold mine roofs. In Belgium, mine shafts, in wet, "running," ground, are being largely constructed by the freezing process, in which the ground is frozen and made easier of excavation through the medium of refrigerators being forced through pipes surrounding the area to be excavated. Shafts more than 600 feet in depth have been sunk by this method. A great amount of information bearing directly on other mining problems forming a part of the investigative program of the Bureau of Mines was obtained by Mr. Rice.

Mr. Rice reports that the research agencies of the various European governments were greatly

MANY ANIMAL FOSSILS FOUND

Tooth Proves Ape Formerly Lived in Nebraska.

GIANT CAMEL'S SKULL FOUND

A tooth of a native ape, the only one known to the New World, and the skull and jaws of a monster prehistoric camel have been discovered by the Albert Thompson expedition in Nebraska. The announcement was made recently by Prof. W. D. Matthews, curator of the department of vertebrate paleontology of the American Natural History museum. In addition to these discoveries, the Thompson expedition will assemble specimens, which, according to Professor Matthews, will form one of the richest collections in the world. It will include the skull and bones of three-toed horses, the fossil remains of the little rhinoceros, the giant pig, and the moropus, or clawed ungulate, all contemporary with animals belonging to the Lower Miocene period. The bones of these animals may have lain buried from 2,000,000 to 20,000,000 years. The great tooth is attributed by Professor Matthews to the Pliocene period, from 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 years ago. The prehistoric camel was one-fifth as large again as the modern desert camel and weighed a third more. Other wise, said Professor Matthews, they corresponded in every respect to the modern Bactrian camel and disappeared from this continent about the Glacial period, probably to seek warmer climates.

Ape Period in Doubt. The age tooth Professor Matthews regards as an even more important discovery, since, he declares, it shows that apes were at one time inhabitants of America. Professor Matthews is unable to say what period the tooth belongs to without a close examination. He does not think it belongs to the Miocene age, the missing link period between ape and mankind, nor does he believe it will afford evidence which will alter his conviction that this continent was not inhabited by primitive man.

Mr. Thompson, after six months of excavation work in the Snake Creek fossil quarries in western Nebraska, has shipped this museum eleven cases of fossils and bones of prehistoric monsters, said Professor Matthews. "The specimens are being unpacked and classified at the museum, awaiting their return."

"This is the sixth year the American Natural History museum has worked the Nebraska quarries, which have yielded countless thousands of bones belonging to more than 150 species of animals. The great majority of which were thought to have existed only in prehistoric days in Europe, Asia and Africa."

Quarries Rich in Fossils. "The Nebraska quarries are probably the most extraordinary of their kind in the world, and have proved to be veritable gold mines. They were discovered in 1877 by James H. Cook, an old Indian scout and plainsman, who was then the proprietor of a large cattle ranch at A. Cook, at present owned by his son, Harold Cook. The quarry occupies two small hills on the Cook ranch not far from the Nebraska river. Running through these hills is a rich layer of fossil deposit two feet thick containing thousands of ancient bones."

"The Nebraska state geologist in the early nineties made a survey of the quarry, and the first large fossil collection was taken from it by the Carnegie museum at Pittsburgh. Later, New York's museum began to work the quarry and obtained a considerable fossil collection. The quarry, however, is so rich in deposits that these operations barely scratched its sides and the greater part of the buried treasures today remain untouched."

"The museum workers from time to time open up other cuts which they hope will yield the ancient mammal specimens they covet. Few have any idea of the vast amount of work and care which is entailed in planning and carrying through an expedition which seeks the remains of those ancient beasts in the hope the remains will shed additional light on the dim and distant evolutionary periods of an early world."

Hundreds of "Little Rhinoceros." "The little rhinoceros, which forms part of the museum's collection, was about the size of a half-grown calf and had two horns side by side at the front of the skull, instead of a single one, as in a pair, one behind the other. His remains are most abundant in the quarry and hundreds of skulls have been taken out by the Carnegie, the American and other institutions. The museum, as it collects from year to year further remains of the little rhinoceros, has the materials now for one or more almost complete skeletons. The animal was known to have roamed over Europe and Asia in its day."

"The giant pig was about the same size as the modern rhinoceros. Little is known of its habits except that it possessed sharp, powerful teeth, and was well equipped to attack and bite his enemies. Some say he was carnivorous, others that he was a vegetarian. It is probable that he lived on vegetable food, nuts, roots and tubers. He roamed all over the northern world."

"The moropus belonged to the ungulate class. He is peculiar in many respects. Especially in his long neck and small head, suggesting a horse, and his deep body and rounded back, suggesting a tapir. His long shaggy legs are suggestive of a giraffe. His feet are most like a rhinoceros, except that they have great claws in stead of hoofs."

May Have Perished in River. "This animal is extremely rare except in Nebraska quarries. Although his remains have been found in Europe, they have generally been in fragments. A part of a skeleton has been found in France, and in India, but nowhere in the Old World have his remains been found in such abundance."

North Pole From The Air Will Look Like This To Captain Roald Amundsen

ABOVE: FIRST PHOTOGRAPH OF THE ARCTIC REGIONS MADE FROM AN AIRPLANE. INSET: CAPTAIN AMUNDSEN IN ARCTIC GEAR. NEW YORK.—This is what the North Pole will look like to Captain Roald Amundsen when he explores with two companions, three airplanes and a dog sled.

One of the planes will be piloted by Lieut. Ralph E. Doolittle, of the United States Navy. The expedition will be transported north to Spitzbergen on shipboard late next May, and a base of operations established, then by ship to the edge of the ice-pack, and thence from the North Pole.

The district from which the expedition will embark on the final wing of its flight to the Pole is shown in the above photograph, the first to show the Arctic regions from the air.

dance as in Nebraska. In the last three or four years several of his skeletons have been taken from the quarry and are on exhibition in various institutions throughout the country.

"Scientists are at a loss to account for the remains of these three animals only in the quarry and for the great abundance of their bones there. Various theories have been brought forward to account for the enormous assemblage of their remains and nothing else in all probability when these animals roamed the continent, the quarry was part of a channel of a stream. One theory is that these beasts venturing too far into the stream got caught in an eddy or strong currents and were thus carried to their death."

"There is another theory that coming to the stream to drink they were caught in quicksands. This might explain why the remains of smaller animals are not found with them, since these could drink from the edge of the waters, while the larger animals were forced to walk into the center of the stream to quench their thirst."

Of the habits of the ancient beasts Professor Matthews said little was known. That they filled some useful part in the far distant animal age in which they lived and that they inhabited the New World as well as the Old is shown by the many bones buried in the sandstone. He says that it remains to be seen whether further quest will throw any additional light on their origin.

$20,000,000 GIVEN JAPAN

Large Sum Sent by United States to Quake Sufferers.

Honorable Minister Goto presented at a dinner at Tokyo two handsome all-very camouflaged cases to Brig. Gen. Frank R. McCoy and Col. George T. Langhorne as a token of Japan's appreciation of their services in lending the relief work for the earthquake sufferers.

Ambassador Cyrus E. Woods read a telegram stating that there still were $5,000,000 of America's gift unexpended and asking what was needed. Viscount Goto promised to supply the information.

General McCoy estimated the gifts from America by the Red Cross, the army and navy and by private subscription at $20,000,000.

OILS TESTED BY U. S.

Analyzes Foreign and Domestic Samples for Comparative Values. The purpose of the crude oil survey at the Buttsville, Okla., experimental station of the bureau of mines is to analyze crude oils from every field of commercial importance in the United States and foreign countries and publish the results, according to the Department of the Interior at Washington.

The value of this work, the department said, lies chiefly in the methods in which the analyses are made, every oil being run in a similar manner so that the analyses of the various oils are comparable. All fields in the United States, excepting the California fields, have been reported upon. Samples have been received from all foreign fields except the Russian.

The department also is conducting an investigation to determine the relative refining value of typical crude oils from domestic fields. All refined products will be manufactured from the crudes and the cuts will be large enough to permit a study of physical and chemical characteristics.

RARE U. S. COINS UNEARTHED

Diggers in New York Find Relics of Republic's Youth.

"Sand holes" working 50 feet under ground on the foundations of the New York Telephone company building recently in New York unearthed several rare American coins dating back to the latter part of the eighteenth century.

An official in charge of the work said 50 feet under ground the men found the bulk of an old vessel about the size of a modern cannon boat.

While digging out the bulk the men found the coins, which were bronze or copper. One bore the word "Libertas" and is dated 1793. On the reverse side is the inscription "Constitutione Nova." Another coin found is dated 1780. Of the nine coins found no two are alike. Another find was that of a man's skull with the horns attached. This was dug out of the mud 12 feet below the bulk.

Oldest Industrial Concern. What is believed to be the oldest definitely established industrial concern in the world—Sore Koppurke Slags, in Bergen, Norway—is celebrating its seven hundredth anniversary. It was founded in 1223 to exploit copper from a mine at Fulu, and has made continuous deliveries since 1223.

Market Retains Price Level Of Past 30 Days But Loses Something In General Tone

Distress Coke Gains Slightly
After Having Been Well Cleaned Up.

HEATING IN GOOD DEMAND

One Lot of Furnace "Dumped" at Loss
Than $2.75, Minimum; Regular Production Held at $4.00; No Contract
Market at All; Coal Shade Easier.

From The Weekly Courier.
PITTSBURG, Nov. 14.—While the coke market is not quite lower than for the past 30 days, the market has lost something in general tone in the past week. It is, however, at least as firm as it was two weeks ago.

When prices originally declined to their present unsatisfactory level there was much coke on track seeking shipping instructions, making what is frequently called "distress" coke. This coke was well worked off, and a week or ten days ago there was hardly more of such coke than there is in normal times. This week, however, there seems to be an increase again, but the aggregate is comparatively small. The producers have been curtailing production sharply for weeks past, the large interests in particular figuring very carefully how much coke is required to meet their regular operations, and making such an amount of coke and no more, but among the smaller operators, those who sell largely from week to week, there has not been similar ability to curtail production.

All things considered, heating coke, or "medium sulphur coke," has been in good demand, the usual buyers taking normal quantities, with a little extra, to stock up for winter. Prices are the same as formerly. While prices are not satisfactory, they are approximately in the usual proportion to the standard furnace coke market.
The minimum on ordinary heating coke is $3.25, and on regular quality this minimum is very strictly observed.
On coke at all above the usual run, but still gradable as heating coke rather than as metallurgical fuel, high prices are obtained, with sales not infrequently made at $3.50.
Coke of inferior structure to regular medium sulphur coke has been bringing fair prices, relatively, one lot of first drawing going at $3.15, or only ten cents discount.

Blas furnace men are disposed to try to make some capital out of the fact that a good sized lot of "standard furnace coke" has been sold at $3.50.
Coke operators do not deny that such a transaction occurred, there being 2,000 tons or more in the lot, but they point out that since the coke did not go for metallurgical purposes at all it does not help to make the market or blast furnace coke. The sale represented a sort of dumping operation, whereby so much standard furnace coke was taken out of the market. The interest that made the sale would not now sell at under $2.75.
This is, in general, the minimum of the market, and various small lot sales support it, the coke being more or less "distress" coke in all cases.

For regular production operators continue to quote $4.00 though they admit that sales at this price have not amounted to much the past week.
Standard furnace coke continues quotable at $5.00 to $5.50, according to brand, where it has stood for a month past. Demand is distinctly light and shows no particular sign of improving. The market is quotable
the same as a week ago, as follows:
Spot furnace..... $3.25 to $3.50
Spot country..... $3.00 to $3.25
Of late there has been no inquiry for furnace coke for extended delivery, even for so short a period as to the end of the year, and there is simply no market on contract coke.

By-product coal has been absolutely dormant in the past week, nothing developing to show what sort of a trend the market may have. The probability is that $2.00 is about as much as operators would expect to obtain on spot or prompt lots, even for very good quality.

The Pittsburgh steam coal market is a shade easier again. For the better grades in the district $2.00 is the standard price for steam minus-run, and on prompt lots this price is frequently shifted even for very good grades, while others, still strictly within the Pittsburgh district, go at $1.35 and occasionally at less still.
The market is not expected to decline at the close of lake navigation, but there is doubt whether it will go up, except of course in the case of slack.

Pig iron continues very dull. While consumers are still operating moderately, well they are very chary of making any purchases, apparently thinking the bottom has not yet been reached in prices, although the decline in the past six months may be considered spectacular. Purchases when made are only small prompt lots. Prices are not quite changed in the week, but are not regarded as overly firm.

TO ATTEMPT THE FIRST TRANSARCTIC FLIGHT

Mr. Hakon H. Hamner, president of the Universal Trading and Shipping company of Seattle, who is associated with Capt. Roald Amundsen, the famous explorer who discovered the South pole and was the first man to negotiate the passage of the fabulous Northwest passage, completing the circumnavigation of the Arctic circle.
The new expedition which Mr. Ham-ner and Captain Amundsen will lead in three metal planes from Spitzber-gen, Norway, next summer will blast the Arctic circle, and pass above the North pole, a feat never before even attempted, and land at Point Barrow, Alaska. Valuable photographs of historic unexplored terrain will be made, and the two explorers will decide for all time whether or not there exists a new continent in the frozen North.

The photograph shows Mr. Hamner in New York, where he and Captain
Amundsen arrived from Walgreen, Alaska, en route to Norway, where they will establish a chain of depots similar to the one which they have just arranged in Alaska.

IF BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

Drink Plenty of Water and Take Glass of Salts Before Breakfast Occasionally.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract.
Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's poisonous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much, also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving blind-der weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active.
Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.—Advertisement

Sees Parents' Interest Best Guard Against Bad Movies

BY NEWELL DWIGHT HILLIS.

The most direct road to the intellect and memory is through the gateway of the eye. Multitudes of our people receive the truth slowly through the written word but swiftly through the movie.

The surest safeguard against bad pictures is not the censorship of responsibility to two or three censors, in a city or state, but the awakening of millions of parents to the duty of safeguarding every day the child's health, the child's friends, the child's reading and the child's entertainment. One of the signs of the passing of non-sensational pictures, with the era of parental neglect, is to be found in the new civic committees of the show, theatre and in the movie houses.

A few years ago the publishers inaugurated Children's Book Week, the National Government started Education Week and last year the National Committee for Better Films intervened in the improvement of photographs, inaugurated Motion Picture Book Week.

Idealistic and Concrete

All the best forces of the country—producers, clubs, booksellers, librarians and community service bodies—are behind the Committee's splendid purpose. Its work has been not merely idealistic but concrete, as it has named certain photographs made from books of keen human interest, of humor, of splendid adventure and of romance, which will hold the heart and mind and improve both. It is receiving the sincere help of producers and exhibitors, who are having these photographs shown during Motion Picture Book Week in every city and town in the country.

The first purpose of the National Committee for Better Films has been to stimulate an interest in the right sort of motion picture. Its second purpose has been to supply the stressed desire.

Among the photo plays which have received its approval are the following: "Alice Adams," "Penny and Sam" and "The Pilot" by Booth Tarkington; "Oliver Twist," "Our Mutual Friend" and "The Pickwick Papers" by Charles Dickens; "Barnes Commandments" by Charles Alden Selzer; "Monte Cristo" by Alexandre Dumas; "The Spoils of War" by Rex Beach; "Quincy Adams Sawyer" by Charles Felton Pidgin; "The Call of the Wild" and "The Abysmal Brute" by Jack London; "The Prince and the Pauper" by Mark Twain; "Gentleman by Night" by Rafael Sabatini; "The Rambling Kid" by Earl Wuyland; "The Virginian" by Owen Wister; "Richard the Lion-Hearted" from Sir Walter Scott's NEWELL DWIGHT HILLIS of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, supporter of Motion Picture Book Week is being actively observed November 11-17.

"The Tallman"; "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood"; "Masters of Men" by Morgan Robertson; "Heroes of the Street" by Lem Parker.

Psychology of the Christmas Stamp

The Christmas stamp is comparatively a modern means of raising funds for charitable relief. It has been widely used by charitable organizations for specific drives or on certain holidays.

Recently, however, in the trail of the European War, there has been relief given not only in the old fields but also in those countries usually considered most prosperous, and the relief stamp has become a feature in much relief work of wide scope. In line with this Dr. J. A. Morehead, executive director of the National Lutheran Council, 487 Fifth Ave., New York City, announces a new Christmas holiday stamp issued in sheets of ten, at one dollar a hundred, for use generally on letters and packages. The funds derived from the sale of this stamp will be used by the Council for European relief in places where the need is greatest. The stamp bears as its motto statement of the first Christmas gift made to all the world: "God So Loved the World That He Gave His Only Begotten Son."

"The National Lutheran Council has found the Christmas stamp very successful in the past," said Dr. Morehead, "There are many people who take real pleasure in the little oft-repeated act of thoughtfulness which the use of these stamps requires.

"It is not like a big gift once made. It is in a sense a continuous giving, and we think that it has thus a splendid psychological effect upon the people. After all, giving is a habit of the heart, just as is the unwillingness to give, and any system of giving which requires the constant repetition in the mind of the 'will to give' is of great benefit to the particular cause, to the individual giver, and to the organization under whose auspices the gift is made. It comes eventually to the old maxim that to think right is to do right, and the use of the holiday stamp constitutes a most effective training in right thinking.

"Some one has said that the Christian ideal is a sum total of righteous habits. Of these not the least is the habit of giving to relieve suffering.

"Europe today is filled with suffering, and for those who suffer the condition is often hard to bear, because so much actual want exists among peoples heretofore considered the richest in the world."

At the Theatres

The Paramount

"TREASURE CANYON"—With H. B. Warner in the stellar role, and a selected comedy, provide interesting entertainment today and tomorrow at this theatre. The former attraction is in five acts and the role in which Mr. Warner appears is one of the best of his screen career. He is supported by all star cast.

Monday and Tuesday of next week, "Jacqueline, Or Blazing Barriers," an Oliver Curwood story will be shown. Lew Cody is a member of the all star cast.

The Soisson

"CHILDREN OF THE DUST"—Showing today and tomorrow at this theatre, was adapted from the Metropolitan magazine story, "Terwilliger," and has an all star cast consisting of Johnny Walker, Pauline Garon, Lloyd Hughes, Frankie Lee, George Nichols, Bert Woodruff, Josephine Adair and Newton Hall.

"Children of Dust," with its living characters, is truly a page from the book of life. It is a human story of real people. The story is of Terwilliger and the last love for Helen Livermore, a wealthy girl. He has a rival, Harvey, a Harvard graduate, another wealthy child. Old Archer, caretaker of a New York estate, plays an important part in the romance. While the story opens with several childhood incidents which have a vital bearing on the tale, most of the action takes place twelve years later. In the sacrifices for love, and in the romance, Borage mirrors the very essence of life.

The picture throbs with action, comedy and the wishfulness of human incidents which make life worth while. Borage has been installed into "Children of Dust," which is a First National picture, all of the pathos, humor and romance of "Humoresque" in greater measure.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, "Penny and Sam" will be shown.

The Orpheum

"PLEASURE MAD"—On view today and tomorrow at this theatre, is one of the best attractions at this theatre in months. The principal members of the all star cast are Huntley Gordon, Mary Alden, William Collier, Jr., and Winifred Bryson.

The whole production is an appropriate reward of intelligent direction. The cast is as good as could be wished for and through Barker's competent handling each player performs in a sane, sincere and logical manner. The picture has an irresistible heart appeal and it puts over a lesson in human conduct that only a great screen could equal.

It is the story of a happy, small-town family. Their contentment carried through misfortune and great poverty. By means of an invention by the father the family suddenly comes into great wealth and removes to palatial surroundings in the big city. Wealth leads to a mad search for pleasure on the part of all except the mother, who remains steadfast to her earlier ideal and in this way, eventually, assists the other members of the family to redeem themselves.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, Pola Negri and Jack Holt will be seen in "The Cheat."

SULPHUR SOOTHES

UGLY, ITCHING SKIN

The First Application Makes Skin Cool and Comfortable.

If you are suffering from eczema or some other torturing, embarrassing skin trouble, you may quickly be rid of it by using Montho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist.

This sulphur preparation, because of its germ destroying properties, seldom fails to quickly subdue itching, even of fiery eczema. The first application makes the skin cool and comfortable. Rash and blotches are cleared right up. Raw, itchy Montho-Sulphur is applied like any pleasant cold cream and is perfectly harmless. You can obtain a small jar from any good druggist.—Advertisement.

ART FOR ART'S SAKE

There was only one man in the tent when the sideshow opened, but the lady performed as earnestly as if she had been appearing before the assembled crowned heads of Europe. She wound a torpid box constrictor around her shapely waist, draped it over her snowy shoulders, and bestowed a shy little smile upon the lone spectator.

"The snake," she explained, "is charmed."

"I would be myself," said the gentleman, politely.

Says—Now Stiff Joints Must Go!

New Discovery Limbers 'Em Up and Even the Creaking Caisers.

Yes: It's true—the world progresses.

All you have to do nowadays to limber up that stiff, rusty knee joint is to squeeze a half inch of miracle working substance from a tube.

Then rub it on the offending part for about a quarter of a minute or until it soaks through the skin and disappears on its errand of mercy.

Then read the evening newspapers and go to bed.

The chances are that your misbehaving knee joint will lose its "creak" while you are dreaming about the high fences you used to leap when you were a youngster.

"And in the morning," says one who has tried this new discovery, "you'll feel so happy that you'll want to jump into your sportiest clothes and walk briskly down the street just to show the neighbors that you are not as old as they think you are."

Joint Ease: "They call this wonder working substance for the reason that when ordinary remedies fail to limber up the stiff, inflamed rheumatic joint, or reduce the swelling, Joint Ease succeeds."

It's a good name for a good, clean, stainless prescription that in just a few minutes has proven to a multitude of people that lame, swollen, distorted joints can speedily have the kinks taken out of them and work as smoothly as ever.

But, Joint Ease is for bothersome joints, whether in knee, ankle, hip, shoulder, spine or finger, and for that purpose its sale is immense.

Brownsville and Tornado Managements Still Unable To Come to Terms on Game

Locals Feel Billy Long Has No Right to Dictate Terms This Season.

FORFEIT IS DEMANDED

There are no new developments in the Tornado-Brownsville game situation today. Another conference of managers will likely be held soon and it appears that possibly the contest may fall through. It is certain to if Billy Long, manager of the Brownsville Independents, continues to occupy the role of dictator.

Long evidently feels that he is in position to tell the Cokers what they must do in reference to playing the game. The Brownsville manager has named his terms and now comes to bat. It is reported, with a statement that the locals must post a forfeit to insure the playing of a game in Brownsville next season. The manager is magnanimous enough to say he will not quarrel over the playing date this season, or even over the playing field, being content to meet the Tornadoes on Limestone Hill or Fayette Field.

To Connelville people the Brownsville stand is becoming very exasperating. At first there were a number who were inclined to favor the terms stated by the river town club, but then when it developed that the independent management was trying to run the whole "works" an undercurrent of opposition appeared.

In the opinion of Connelville people the Brownsville team should remember that it is no longer an undefeated outfit and for that reason could hardly expect to dictate terms to a team that won over the eleven which hung crepe on the river town striders.

Long says there are two issues which must be met and if they were not all arguments would be useless. The football "czar" wants a guarantee of $1,200 with the privilege of half the gate receipts to play here. The latter phrase is suitable to the Tornadoes but they do not desire to give the visitors a guarantee. No such terms were made by Connelville last year.

Unless Brownsville does play Connelville the locals may rightly claim the title as county champion. Many teams which played Brownsville have been here and each succeeding week has witnessed a more dangerous foe facing the locals.

Brownsville went undefeated until last Sunday when Christ Park won. 3-0. The Cokers defeated that team here, 7-0. These scores alone demonstrate the superiority of the Tornadoes and the management says Billy Long will have to recognize the fact that he is not at the head of the county's logical championship aggregation just now.

To prove themselves worthy of the championship, Brownsville's Independents must win over the Tornadoes.

The Connelville Tornadoes will play the Hope Harvey eleven here Sunday afternoon it was announced yesterday. The visiting team has played all the high class eleven, including the Hope Harvey, to a standstill this year and will be the toughest proposition yet taken on by the locals.

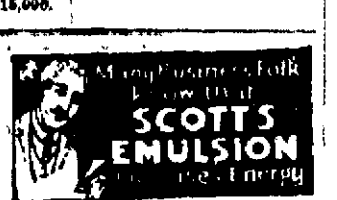

In view of the pending game with Brownsville, fans are much interested, especially as it is felt the aggregation in the other end of the county cannot be much stronger than the team which visits here Sunday.

High School PLAYING DONORA AT HOME TODAY

The High School football team left here at 11:45 o'clock this morning for Donora for the early game on the schedule away from home. The team had a light workout at Fayette Field last night and was dismissed early. The boys got a good rest last night and were given early dismissals from school this morning in order to go home for a light dinner.

The game is scheduled to begin at 2:45 o'clock. A number of local fans will accompany the team to the river town.

Keen Says Texas Is Hot

"Talk about heat," says Pitcher Vic Keen of the Chicago Nationals. "Those nine or ten weeks I was in the Texas league last summer with Wichita Falls it averaged better than a hundred."

"I pitched a game one afternoon when it was 120 out there on the field, and it went 10 innings. Between rounds I stuck my feet, shoes and all, in a bucket of water to keep the spikes from blistering my feet."

GEORGE SISLER MAY NEVER PLAY AGAIN

Will Quit If Winter's Rest Fails to Restore Sight.

Despite optimistic statements to the contrary which recently found their way into print the indications are George Sisler will never play ball again.

To be cut down right in the prime of youth, before he really had reached his top form, was a bitter stroke for Sisler. And not only Sisler, the St. Louis Browns, the American league, but the fans as well.

Sisler, through his remarkable playing, had become the game's idol. He was Ty Cobb's successor, probably destined to become a bigger favorite than Ty Cobb, owing to his winning personality, and he was considered more valuable than Babe Ruth.

The latest report on Sisler is as much of a mystery as last winter when he was unable to respond to the call for spring training.

With Lee Fohl ousted as manager of the St. Louis Browns recently, it has been taken for granted that Sisler will become the manager of the club in 1924 and occupy first base.

Perhaps the former, but the latter is not assured, although it has been eight months since he was stricken with influenza.

Sisler's present drawback is the sinus affection which interferes with the perfect sight of his right eye. It is a weak eye which controls the focus of the optic, and although it appears to be improving, Sisler today is far from being totally recovered.

"Time alone will determine my future as a ball player," said Sisler the other day in discussing the case.

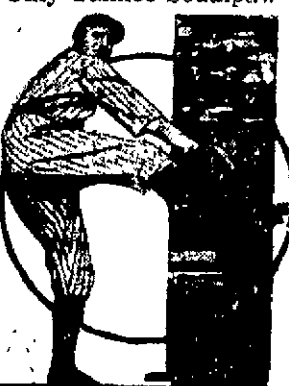

"Last spring I had hopes of being in uniform on June 1. Later I postponed this desire until August 1. Then I expected to be back in the game by September 1 at the latest."

"I will not make any foolish step. Of course, I'm optimistic and I feel that the winter's rest will cure me entirely. If it doesn't, however, then I will not think about getting in the uniform again. If nothing else, a ball player must have perfect vision."

The most cheerful news about Sisler is found in golf games, as he played during the last four weeks. It takes a keen eye to pick that small ball out of the rough, and Sisler has done it repeatedly with a masher.

Even if Sisler recovers sufficiently to resume play next year, it is doubtful if he will be able to show the form that caused him to be the most-talked-about player in the game. Faulty eyesight is certain to destroy much of his confidence at the plate, and also handicap his fielding.

Only Yankee Southpaw

"Iron Man" McGinnity to Quit Game for Business

"Iron Man" Joe McGinnity, fifty-two-year-old hurler, who pitched the Dubuque club to the Mississippi Valley league championship, has announced his retirement from baseball. He pitched more than 30 games during the season and was regarded as one of the league's leading relievers. He has accepted a position with a manufacturing company at Des Moines, Ill. McGinnity started his professional career with Van Buren, Ark. in 1892, and has been connected with the game ever since. He was in the big leagues ten years.

PENNSYLVANIA USING SIMPLE GRID PLAYS

Coach Young Has Done Away With Complicated System.

Coach Lou Young, who succeeded John Heisman as director of football at the University of Pennsylvania, this fall adopted the slogan "Not many plays, but have them perfect."

Young is steering the right course. Every season football teams are ruined by half learning 85 to 100 plays and persons wonder why they lost. The players had too much to remember. Mentally they were strong, but their mechanical execution was poor. Fundamentals had been neglected in the wild desire to keep the other fellow fooled.

Simplicity, power, paucity of plays is the keynote of a strong offense. Young has endeavored to follow this basis scheme at Pennsylvania. For years it has been Andy Smith's system at the University of California to bowl over the opposing teams with a repertoire of about six or eight plays. In fact, in the preliminary games not more than three or four have been used in running up big scores.

Glenn Warner has not given Pitt a flock of plays, and still the Panthers have been able to make a lasting record. It has long been a Warner byword among rival coaches. "He can tell you where the plays are coming, and they are so well perfected that it is virtually impossible to stop them."

Penn football authorities feel that the principal trouble with last year's team was that the men were asked to absorb too many plays.

Coach John W. Heisman, now at Washington and Jefferson, overhauled the red and blue squad with two many plays, and when game time came they were all at sea. Several times during the season plays were changed on the eve of important games. A number of trick plays were worked up, but never used.

Calls Swimming Channel

Huge Task for Fat Man

Swimming the English channel is a fat man's game. Carlin A. Walker of Cleveland who swam across Lake Erie this summer, but failed to negotiate the channel, said in explanation of his failure:

"It was in the water three and one-half hours," he said. "It was so cold it penetrated my muscles. After swimming three miles I became delirious and then unconscious."

"It's a fat man's job—and only a man with a lot of surplus flesh on his ribs to withstand the cold water can succeed. I failed because I had kept down weight for fast swimming."

George Kelly Can Tell

Uncle Bill Something

Bill Lange was a great outfielder for the Chicago Nationals back in 1899, and during the off-season used to tell George Kelly, his young nephew, all the doings in the big league. Now George can tell Uncle Bill something.

In a game against the Cubs recently George hit a home run in each of three straight innings. Kelly stands out as a fine first baseman. Yes, George has a lot to tell Uncle Bill if he is so inclined.

Paul Johner of Switzerland, a one-time champion of the Manhattan Chess club of New York, was the winner of first prize in the recent international tournament held by the Italian Chess federation at Trieste. There were twelve entries. Johner's score was 9½ wins and 1 loss.

Factory Demonstration of GRAND COMBINATION RANGES

Mr. C. A. McKenney of the Cleveland Co-Operative Stove Co., will be here three days, commencing Thursday, Nov. 15th, at 2 P. M., to explain and demonstrate this wonderful combination range. Don't fail to attend this demonstration.

If you are thinking of purchasing a new Combination Range do not do so until you have seen the "GRAND." The "GRAND" is the only combination range manufactured today that has not had a mechanical change made in it in the last eight years.

This Range is guaranteed by Gately & Fitzgerald Furniture Co., and also the Cleveland Co-Operative Stove Co., of Cleveland, Ohio. The oven burner is so constructed that it is impossible to blow it out when closing oven door. The flue construction and location of burner makes possible all products of combustion to be carried out through the special flues instead of going into the bake oven. The oven burner is so constructed that when in operation every square inch of the bake oven is heated uniform on account of a T shaped burner carrying one third of the heat up around the top and two thirds on the bottom of the Range, which makes this one of the most practical operating Combination Ranges that is made today.

It is guaranteed to bake perfectly with either fuel, coal or gas, in the same oven. This Range can be furnished in different sizes, four holes for coal and four for gas on the top compartment, also two holes for coal and four for gas which makes a wonderful Range for the lady who has a small amount of floor space in her kitchen. These Ranges can be furnished in brown, blue or gray enamel and full nickel trimmed. The "GRAND" Combination Range has been one of the most successful that has been sold throughout Western Pennsylvania.

Circular Cut One Feature of Skirt

Use of Flare Favored by Prominent Designer of Chic Gowns.

Particular interest is centering around the various Patou models, writes a Paris fashion correspondent in the New York Tribune. There is no avoiding the fact that Jean Patou has drawn to him the interest of the American importer. This is largely because he is a business man as well as an artist and not only makes beautiful clothes but knows how to present them and sell them.

This designer makes a most unusual use of the flare. Practically every garment in his line has the flare cut somewhere, either in front, at the back or on the side. The flare is so discreet, however, that it is barely noticeable. It takes nothing from the straight silhouette, but rather emphasizes it by softening the slender line of the body.

Patou divides woman's day into its various component parts. He overlooks the hour in the day when she may enhance the charms of the fashionable woman with beautiful clothes. There are delightful sports things, dresses for tennis, for golf, for mountain climbing, for shooting, as to make one feel that it actually is a complement to the dress. Then for snowy days and for languid southern ones there are coats and wraps for flying, for rain and for traveling.

He shows smart little tailored suits and gowns for the morning promenade, for shopping, for the races and for restaurant dejeuner—three-piece suits of infinite variety from the stand point of color and trimming. He features the ensemble consisting of dress and coat, the coat sometimes matching exactly and again contrasting in just such a way. There are tailored dresses for both morning and afternoon wear and an enchanting series of dancing dresses and tea frocks.

Beautiful Tea Gowns.
Not overlooking the woman who often remains at home for tea he has made most beautiful costumes of tulle, lace and tea gowns. Many of the latter will serve beautifully for intimate dinner dresses—what the French term their chaises.

Every imaginable thing for informal as well as elaborate evening functions has been thought out by Patou, including the gorgeous evening costume, where the dress and the coat match or are brought into harmony through similarity in color, material or trimming.

As a source of inspiration for many of his trimmings, Patou has turned to Chinese, Persian and Hindu-Chinese gowns. He has had special materials woven for him by the Societe Francaise. He has a series of beautiful patterns which he puts out under the name of "Exposition de l'Extrême." Another lovely material which comes in all colors is an embroidered satin called "Seran Persian." Still another is an embroidered metal brocade which is named "Lamé-Persan" and "Lamé-Inde" and a beautiful series of embroidered patterns called "Fleurs de Japon." There is also a lovely brocade which he puts out under the name "Lace Orientale," which is a very dull crepe on one side and on the other a satin of high luster.

Use of Double-Faced Fabrics.
He does all kinds of interesting things with this two-faced silk. A model typical of Patou's new silhouette ette as well as his clever use of materials. In black crepe, by contrast, the special new satin-surfaced tulle, this crepe just mentioned. The two large circular flounces are mounted with the satin surface outside. The body of the robe shows the dull crepe side.

He also has a Byzantine brocade which has most delightful little Jacquard patterns in self-tone scattered all over the surface. Sometimes he uses this brocade crepe along with plain crepe in one dress.

One of Patou's evening dresses, simple in line but of most striking and beautiful metal brocade, is further enhanced by var-color and metal embroideries. He has named it "Nuit de Chine."

He does another clever thing with wool rope. This material he uses with the rope line, cut both vertically and in layed line. It is curious what a difference this makes in the tone or surface of the fabric. It would seem as if two different materials were used.

Many of the patterns in the ensembles and brocades are done from drawings by Patou himself. One of his newest models showing his originality.

Brown Velvet Dress and Coat. Lines of the Coat Are Made to Harmonize With the Cut of the Dress, Which Is of Blouse Type.

nal treatment of embroideries consists of a dress and coat of brown velvet and beautiful Persian embroidered crepe. By contrast in brown and red.

Three Attractive Costumes.
The lines of the coat harmonize perfectly with the cut of the dress. Both the blouse of the coat and the blouse of the dress skirt flare at the same angle. The upper part of the dress is made with the beautiful Persian-patterned embroidery.

The return to the old traditions of the Haute Couture brings in its train the triumph of the fall evening dress. In the past, the fashion of the evening dress was a poor figure beside the more brilliant full-dress; the unpretentious little dress for evening wear, easy to put on, is being discarded by the fall evening dress, and it is only simple justice since the men discard more and more that ennobled garment, the dinner jacket, for the dress-coat. The dress-coat demands the accompaniment of a beautiful robe, very décolleté, sumptuous and brilliant.

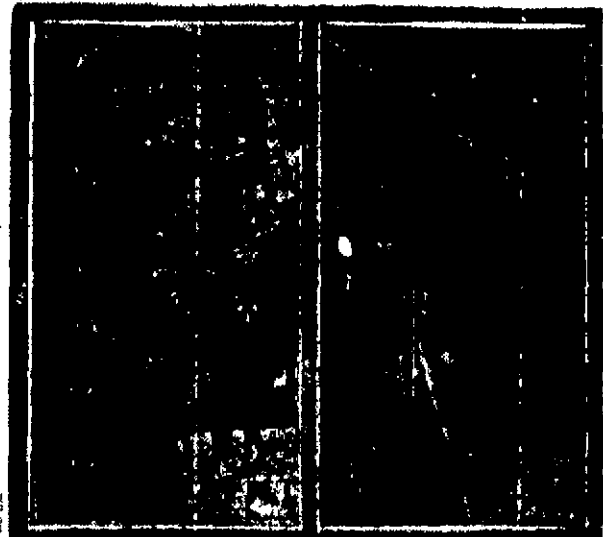

Those in the important collections retain these conditions without restriction. There is no sign of richness in limited fabrics, colored velvets and dazzling embroideries. The dress which symbolizes this reviving pomp is the dress called "orange," of which the sumptuous material and the original trimming together form an ensemble worthy of the Arabian Nights.

The Oriental note is strongly emphasized in all embroideries. An interesting novelty in this needlework is the introduction of tiny mirrors, such as are seen on the skirts of the Nautiche girl dancers. Some of the coats and dresses are entirely covered with Chinese and Japanese landscape designs, usually done in metal of one color only.

Black and White Effects.
There are exquisite things in metal cloth with metal embroideries and many lovely white effects with embroidery in black. Gray is quite strongly featured, particularly gray plush. A lovely, three-piece model in gray plush, trimmed with brilliant, is called "Nanon," and makes one think of the North pole.

The strictly tailor-made has not regained its vogue; the elegant woman wears it but little and only on very definite occasions, such as for traveling or for morning outings. Apart from these occasions, and often even on these occasions, the tailor-made is discarded for the coat-dress made in woolen velvet, cotton velvet or in grain de poudre. These dresses are profusely trimmed with fur in order to give them that comfortable and warm appearance essential to a winter garment. When the tailor-made is worn the finishing touch of elegance is attained with the ever-fashionable blue or silver fox scarf. Numerous chemise dresses in serge, in velvet and in Smyrna cloths are shown. Women may rest easy that the chemise dress has been saved for them.

LOSING THE CAPITAL HELPED

Philadelphia's Growth Showed Moving of Government Was a Benefit on the Whole.

Would Philadelphia have been a greater or lesser city had it remained, as it was for a quarter of a century, the seat of congress?

It was the capital of the republic under the Constitution for ten years. Pennsylvania was quick on the trigger to capture the national capital, says Girard in the Philadelphia Inquirer. Hardly had the ink of the signature dried upon the original copy of the United States Constitution before Philadelphia and Bucks county together offered to give the nation a block of land ten miles square.

That offer to the country made in the name of Pennsylvania was presented to congress.

The federal government was to have exclusive jurisdiction over that territory, but the city of Philadelphia itself, as it then existed, was to be excluded from the offer.

To further the move and make this the permanent national capital, Pennsylvania, which then owned Independence hall—always called state-house—on that day—offered congress the use of that building. It was then the state capital.

Congress took it for ten years. In the meantime Hamilton and Jefferson indulged in a political game of chess. Hamilton swapped votes to remove the capital south to the Potomac and Jefferson yielded votes in favor of the government's assumption of state debts.

Seeing that Philadelphia has expanded two millions during the time Washington has grown a quarter of that, perhaps Pennsylvania owes Hamilton and Jefferson a special monument for taking the capital away.

BANDITS FOILED BY A GIRL

How a Landlord's Daughter in Solon, France, Trapped Gang of Italian Robbers.

A large number of southern Italians are employed on reconstruction work in Solon, which was within the area occupied by the Germans. The authorities have had little difficulty with them until the other day, when a band of six held up the customers of a local cafe.

The six entered separately ordered drinks, then appeared to quarrel. In their quarrel they drew knives. Thereupon the proprietor ordered them to settle their dispute outside. His intervention evidently was the awaited signal, for he was overpowered and his customers ranged against the walls, while two of the band stood guard at the door. Thereupon they began to relieve everybody of valuables and when resistance was shown a sharp prick of a knife followed.

The bandits had reckoned without the landlord's daughter who on the first signs of the robbery, slipped out a back window and aroused the neighborhood. When the bandits emerged with their spoils they were met by a discharge of shotguns. Four of them dropped in their tracks. The two survivors surrendered and were taken to jail.

Where Bananas Come From
The ordinary fruit-stand banana is grown chiefly in Jamaica, Costa Rica and other parts of tropical America.

Some attempt has been made to grow them in California, Louisiana and in other states with warm climates, but this is more or less of an experiment because the plant cannot endure the slightest frost. As a novelty a few banana plants have borne fruit in colder climates, but under special protection. It is interesting to note that the best and most tasty bananas are not known to most of us because they are too perishable to ship any distance. In the East Indies there are bananas that grow over a foot long and about two inches thick. These are not exported, but are used for home consumption.

Funeral Before Death.
Funeral services for an aged couple who are still alive were conducted recently at Kocho, Japan. The man, who is the proprietor of a fashionable restaurant, and his wife are both seventy and it was their desire that their funeral should take place before their death.

A long cortege of "mourners" left the Kocho park, and all the procedure of the funeral service according to Buddhist rites was carried out in regular order at the Houswan temple. After the service the couple entertained many of the "mourners" at a dinner, given to celebrate their longevity. They believe that the "funeral" has given them a new lease of life.

The Way of Fate
"Even when a man gets elected to office he's liable to complain of his lot."

"It's a way fate has," said Senator Borah. "When a man gets what he wants it's liable to be handed to him with trimmings that will make him wish he hadn't wanted it."

DOLES BRING RUIN TO EFFICIENCY OF BRITISH LABORERS

Create a New Problem More Serious Than That of Unemployment.

UNFORGETTABLE LESSON

Since the Armistice Britain has spent more than $2,000,000,000 on doles to the unemployed. These are the official figures. The total spent on charity in the last three years has probably been twice as much, writes Herbert M. Casson, London correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger.

There are 1,250,000 unemployed in the British Isles. Counting their dependents, there are about 2,400,000 whose wages support has been cut off. Eleven per cent of the wage-workers of Britain has no job. The "submerged tenth" that shocked London 30 years ago has now become the "unemployed ninth," and the problem is—can they be brought to the surface and restored as useful members of the business world?

Britain was settling down to accept a standing army of a million unemployed, when the government suddenly made a heroic effort to put all the idle to work. A gigantic scheme has been announced by Sir Montague Harlow, new Minister of Labor. His step is an effort to pay wages instead of doles. It is expected to provide work at once for 200,000 men and to stimulate business to such an extent that work will be offered to virtually the whole army of unemployed.

The total amount to be spent by the government for telephone conduits and other improvements, by the railroads, for public highways and bridges, for shipbuilding and other activities, will be $300,000,000, including $50,000,000 in benefits while the elimination of doles is in progress.

In general the new plan of the government is to offer to pay half the interest for 15 years to any private firm that will create work for the unemployed. Never before has any nation been willing to pay so high a price to solve the problem of unemployment.

In the last 12 months the amount raised by the Unemployed Insurance Act has been $245,000,000. Employers have paid $95,000,000. Workers have paid $125,000,000 and the taxpayers have paid $25,000,000.

Create New Problem.

But the fact is that all the money spent on benefits and doles has only created a new problem: much more serious than the problem of unemployment. It has created a standing army of unemployables—of men and women who have been sapped of energy and self-respect.

There has been no census of the unemployables, and probably never will be one. But it is generally believed by employers that 1,000,000 men and women in Great Britain are no longer fit to be regarded as wage-workers. "These people have lived in idleness three years. They have lived fairly well, too. They have received from $5 to $20 a week in money, besides all manner of gifts from the carelessly generous private charities.

These dole-takers have lost the spirit of work. They have become a new leisure class, content to remain idle and dependent. They are the despair of foremen and supervisors. They have deteriorated to such an extent that they no longer are worth employing, even at low wages.

Most of them were unskilled originally and now they have become hopelessly unteachable. What is still worse, they have become thoroughly parasitical, preferring to "edge" for pennies and old clothes. Give one of these unemployables a couple of cigarettes, a seat in a sheltered place and a sixpence to bet on a horse race and he is perfectly content.

There is plenty of cheap food in England and there is always some one to put for a glass of beer. There is always a place to sleep, as landlords are forbidden to evict their delinquent tenants.

Consequently England has become a paradise for the unemployables. There are so many of them that they feel no sense of shame, and they have lived so long without working that they see no urgent reason to become industrious.

Most employers believe that these do-nothings may be written off as permanently unemployable. As one employer says: "Britain has now an appallingly large element of permanently useless human beings."

Private firms cannot afford to employ them, not even though the government should pay half the interest on the expenditure nor the whole of the interest. One self-respecting intelligent worker will do four or five times as much work in a day as one of these unemployables and without much supervision. It is not a mere problem of laziness, which might be solved, but a problem of laziness plus cunning and a determination to

Fred Stone's Little "Pebble" Takes Broadway By Storm; Up In Lights After 10 Minutes!

NEW YORK—Hard-headed Broadway, the most calling street in the world, went frank tears of sentimental joy, and stood up on its heels at the Globe Theater the other night and showed itself for a sign of a 17-year-old girl who had never set foot on the stage before. Ten minutes after the twinkling feet of Fred Stone's daughter Dorothy danced forth in perfect time with those of her famous dad, Charles Billington rushed hatless into the stage and ordered his assistants to place her name in electric lights above the door of the theater.

"The biggest theatrical sensation in 10 years" was the verdict of those who saw the "coming out" of the "stage's most popular debutante."

Revised Her Opinion.

"Oh, Mrs. Russell," said a woman who was entertaining a friend at tea, "when you called last week it was the first time my little daughter, Violet, had seen you, and after you had gone she said: 'Isn't she a pretty lady?'"

Mrs. Russell blushed.

The child, who was also seated at the table, broke in: "But, mother, I hadn't seen her close then."

LEADERS OF 11,000,000 ORGANIZED WOMEN URGE OBSERVANCE OF GOLDEN RULE DAY

LEADERS of National Women's organizations, representing approximately 11,000,000 organized American women, in a recent session in New York City endorsed the idea of an International Golden Rule Day to be observed all over the world on Sunday, December 2nd, with the object of providing food for the orphaned of the Near East, and issued an appeal to the women of the nation to help make the day a success.

Mrs. Percy V. Pennington, former President of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, has addressed a letter to the head of every woman's organization in the country explaining the object and scope of Golden Rule Day and urging nation-wide observance of it.

The Resolutions Committee, consisting of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, and Miss Mary Emma Woolley, presented the following resolution which was unanimously adopted:

"RESOLVED, That the Women's Committee on Near East Relief, pledge its active co-operation to the observance of International Golden Rule Sunday, December 2nd, as a day of self-denial for the purpose of aiding the 10,000,000 orphaned children of the Near East, and under the protection of the Near East Relief.

"RESOLVED, further, that we will urge the co-operation of all women's organizations throughout the country in the observance of this day."

The idea of International Golden Rule Day was originated by the International Near East Association in session at Geneva, Switzerland, last summer as a means of uniting the whole Christian thinking world in the work of caring for and feeding the nation's orphans in the Near East. Families in fourteen different nations will observe the day simultaneously by foregoing their usual meals or less elaborate Sunday dinner and setting instead a meal especially for the orphaned of the Near East, and contributing the difference to the cost of the two meals to the support of the orphanage.

In America, the movement is supported by the Near East Relief and in other nations by similar organizations and societies working towards the same end. Details of the service can be found to be served for Golden Rule Day dinner and other information concerning it can be had by writing to the National Headquarters of the Near East Relief, 121 Fifth Avenue, New York City, or to the nearest state office.

Many prominent European women, including the Queen of Greece, Baroness Schallburg of Denmark, Baroness Sigrid Kurck of Sweden, and Alice Murray, daughter of the President of the United States, have pledged themselves to observe Golden Rule Day and to further its wide observance in their own countries.

Besides Mrs. Pennington as Chairman, other members of the Committee shown in the picture above, who appeal for the support of their various organizations in making Golden Rule Day a success, are Mrs. Ophelia Chapman, City Honorary President of the International Suffrage Alliance; Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, President of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and a member of the Advisory Board of the Conference on Disarmament; Miss Mary Emma Woolley, President of Mount Holyoke College; Mrs. Ellis Lane Chapin, former Most Worthy Grand Mistress of the Eastern Star; Mrs. Livingston Rowe, Schuyler, National President of the United Daughters of the Confederacy; Mrs. Ella A. Hook, Vice-President of the National Women's Christian Temperance Union; Mrs. John F. Roth, President of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. John D. Sherman, Alternate for Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upson, Vice-Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Republican National Committee; Miss Annie Florence Brown, Superintendent of the Lord-A-Ham Societies; Rev. Eva Ryerson, Lodge, Alternate for Mrs. Robert J. Reid, President of the International Order of the King's Daughters and Sons; Mrs. Jeannette W. Emrich, National Director of Women's Organizations of Near East Relief; Mrs. Lillian M. Atough, N. Y. State Director of Women's Activities for Near East Relief.

To Determine All-Wool Dress Goods

Burning or Acid Test Will Settle Question When There Is Doubt.

At this season of the year, almost every woman is buying wool dress material. Notes a fashion correspondent the question of the wool content of the dress she is buying, to choose the best for the money she feels justified in spending is, "How much of this is wool?"

Some few brands of cloth have all-wool guarantees, and a very few large stores have testing laboratories where cloth samples may be tested, but for the large majority of women purchasers the testing must be done by the seller, and in their own homes.

Most wool and cotton mixtures are made after the yarn is spun. Because of this, the thread test, made with threads unraveled from a cut sample, is the most satisfactory. This must be made on threads going in each direction, for substitution is often made in the warp while an all-wool filling is used. The simplest method of determining the character of the thread is by the burning test. A thread of cotton will burn with a flash and almost no odor, while one of wool burns slowly, almost melts back, and gives off the familiar acid odor.

This simply tells whether or not a certain thread is wool. It is not practical as a test for the percentage of wool in a given sample. To determine that more complicated methods will be needed, but in the household where much sewing is done it will pay to provide the material necessary and to test each sample before purchasing.

The materials necessary are: two small glass beakers, a glass stirring rod, a bottle of 50 per cent solution of nitric acid, one of strong household ammonia, and one of 5 per cent solution of either sodium or potassium hydroxide. A gas jet or alcohol lamp will be necessary to furnish heat and a small metal stand with a square of wire gauze on which the beakers may stand.

If the material is white or light-colored the nitric acid test is most evident. Cover the samples to be tested in one of the beakers with nitric acid. In a few moments the wool will turn a bright yellow, for nitric acid will turn any animal fiber that color. Cotton is unaffected. Pour off the acid, wash in clear water and cover with ammonia. This time the yellow threads will turn orange. When the mixing of cotton and wool has been made in the yarn when carding, as is sometimes the case in flannel, it may be thus detected.

Dyed materials will not show the nitric acid tests, so other methods must be used with them. Wool dissolves if boiled for ten minutes in either the sodium or potassium hydroxide. Cotton is unaffected. Sometimes this will prove a complete test of cotton threads one way. Often it will simply weaken the web in both sets of threads. At any rate, it will show you whether you are buying wool or cotton.

Often it is economical and practical to buy cotton and wool mixtures especially if the material must be laundered. But you really are entitled to know which you are getting and to pay the price accordingly.

Care must be exercised in the use of acids to avoid touching other materials or getting them on one's hands. Bottles containing the solution used should be plainly marked and not kept in the same place with any medicines. They are poison and should be labeled such.
